TIME IS THE TEST

The Testimony of Barre People Stands the Test.

The test of time is what tells the tale. The public soon finds out when misrepresentations are made, and merit alone will stand the test of time.

Barre people appreciate merit, and many months ago local citizens publicly endorsed Doan's Kidney Pills; they do so still. Would a citizen make the statement which follows unless convinced that the article was just as represented? A cure that lasts is the kind that every sufferer, from kidney ills is looking for.

Geo. L. Cummings, 75 Prospect street, Barre, Vt., says: "In 1897 when Doan's Kidney Pills were procured at E. A. Drown's drug store, there was a constant dull aching in the small of my back and kidneys. In addition to this was a distressing kidney weakness which caused me no little annoyance. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me and there has been only two slight recurrences of the trouble since. At such times I have taken a few doses of Doan's Kidney Pills and found prompt relief."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Walter A. Wood Disc Harrow

The flexible gangs pass over stones (as shown in the above picture) without injury to the discs. They adjust themselves in like manner to uneven ground and always work at a uniform depth. The roughest field is tilled as nicely as the perfectly level one. By means of a foot lever the driver adjusts the spring-pressure on the inside gang-ends to suit the nature of the soil. This exclusive feature, together with the direct draft and the high grade sharp steel discs, makes the work very light for the team. Simple in construction, durable and easily adjusted, the Walter A. Wood Disc Harrow is the favorite of thousands of farmers.

A. W. ALLEN, SUNNYSIDE FARM

A GIRL AND A GANDER.

By M. QUAD.

(Copyright, 1909, by T. G. McCreary.)

It had been decided in family council that Miss Judith Bradshaw, daughter of the banker, should spend the summer in the country with her aunt. There were two reasons for this. The first was that young Mr. Stevens, of good old family, but without much cash, was calling at the house too frequently for a mere acquaintance, and the second was because a well known oculist, who had been paid for making the discovery, reported that Miss Judith's eyes needed a long rest and the green shade that the grass and trees would throw over them.

Soon after Judith's arrival at the farm Aunt Martha got word that her sister, living ten miles away, was ill, and she hitched up the horse and drove over there. When leaving she said to her niece:

"Judith, it's going to be a hot day, and I wish you'd look out for Washington (Washington was a gander). If he's in the sun too much he gets giddy and falls down as if dead. You know I wouldn't have anything happen to him for the world."

Judith solemnly promised, and the aunt drove away, to return at sundown. Then it was found that things had happened during the day and to hear the whole story from her niece.

"Well," began Judith, "as soon as you went away I walked down to the gate and looked down the road. I wasn't looking for anybody or anything, but just looking. You know folks do sometimes just look?"

"Yes," said Aunt Martha, "I was just looking when that old maid that lives at the next farmhouse came along. Maybe she wanted to speak to me, but I guess it was simply to look at this maulin. I went out to see the old gander. He was sitting under the wagon shed, but as soon as I called 'Washington' to him he came limping toward me. I saw at once that something ailed him. He was jerking and trembling all over. His one eye was rolled up to heaven, his legs were spread out, and he was making a blinding noise just as if he was calling on me to save his life. I ran to the gate to see if there was a man around to appeal to. There was one coming up the road. I waved my hand for him to hurry up."

"So there was a man?"

"Yes, aunt. He just happened to be coming along, you know."

"And did his name just happen to be Stevens?"

"Why, aunt, how did you happen to guess it the first time trying? Yes, his name happened to be Stevens, and when he came running up I called upon him to save Washington's life or lose his own. It was on your account, you know. I knew how you would take on if you came home and found Washington dead. You ought to have seen how noble he was. He didn't hardly wait to shake hands with me and ask if that old maid was around."

"Then—then this Mr. Stevens was some one you had met before?" queried the aunt.

"Why—why, didn't I say that I had met him once or twice in town? I am so confused about Washington, you see. Well, we ran to the barnyard. The poor thing lay right where he had fallen. Not a leg kicked. Not an eyelash quivered. Aunt, it was awful. I don't know anything about first aid, and I stood there wringing my hands when Mr. Stevens revealed the nobility of his nature. He took Washington up in his arms, just as if the poor

You Better Not Get Dyspepsia

If you can help it. Kodol prevents Dyspepsia, by effectually helping Nature to Relieve Indigestion.

A great many people who have trifled with indigestion, have been sorry for it—when nervous or chronic dyspepsia resulted, and they have not been able to cure it.

Everyone is subject to indigestion. Stomach derangement follows stomach abuse, just as naturally and just as surely as a sound and healthy stomach results upon the taking of Kodol.

When you experience sourness of stomach, belching of gas and nauseating fluid, bloated sensation, gnawing pain in the pit of the stomach, heart burn (so-called), diarrhoea, headaches, dullness or chronic tired feeling—you need Kodol. And then the quicker you take Kodol—the better. But what you want, let Kodol digest it.

Ordinary peptic "dyspepsia tablets," physics, etc., are not likely to be of much benefit to you, in digestive ailments. Peppin is only a partial digester—and physics are not digesters at all. Kodol is a perfect digester. Every tablespoonful will digest 2½ pounds of food.

Our Guarantee. Get a dollar bottle of Kodol. If you are not benefited—the druggist will at once return your money. Don't hesitate; any druggist will sell you Kodol on these terms. The dollar bottle contains 24 times as much as the 50c bottle. Kodol is prepared in the laboratories of E. C. De Witt & Co., Chicago.

old gander had been a dying child, and ran with him into the shade of the shed. Then he stroked his back and blew into his eyes and talked to him. Then he sent me for a basin of water and a rag, and after he had soaked Washington's head he bound it up with a wet rag. He also soaked his feet to draw the fever down from his head. I just wish you could have seen how heroic he acted. Some girls would have fallen in love with him with that old gander in his arms."

"But you didn't?"

"I told you how confused and overcome I was. It's a dreadful thing to see your good aunt's favorite gander perish right before your eyes. Well, when Washington got better we grabbed his head with camphor, his legs with vinegar and laid him on a horse blanket under the shed. He went to sleep as quietly as an infant. He seemed to realize that he must do just as Arthur—Mr. Stevens told him."

"And he didn't die?"

"No, aunt. Three hours later he got off his sickbed and licked the old black rooster. No, he didn't die. Mr. Stevens says he will probably live many years yet to bless you."

"And about this Mr. Stevens? It seems odd that he should be out here in the country at the same time you are."

"Not a bit of it. His eyes are also weak, and he came out to board with a farmer and give them rest. He will call tomorrow to see me, and you will be introduced, and he will tell you all about Washington and what to do for him if he has another stroke of apoplexy. I know you will say he's a nice and heroic young man. Just think, how many young men would have taken an old wobbly gander in their arms and sympathized with him as Arthur did?"

It was six weeks before Aunt Martha wrote to her brother, the banker, and then a part of what she said was: "Judith's eyes are well. Her health is also good. She is also engaged to young Mr. Stevens. If that was what you wanted you have brought it about very nicely."
